TISCH / TABLE
DESIGN: PHILIPP MAINZER, 2017

Inspired by the compositions of Suprematism, table KAZIMIR is characterized by a bold mix of forms and materials. With a focus on individual construction, the tabletop rests on a centrally positioned base and allows for a multitude of interpretations for private and public spaces. In a modular principle, the tabletop is available in oak or walnut in a standard version and a RAW version with a brushed natural wood edge. The base made of powder-coated steel is serially available in three different colors as well as in all colors of the RAL palette (with a surcharge) in combination with any tabletop. In addition to powder-coated steel, the base is also available in exclusive materials such as blackened steel, zinc-plated steel and brushed brass. /

Inspired by Suprematist compositions, table KAZIMIR features a bold mix of geometric forms and materials. Focussing on a distinct construction, the tabletop rests on a centre base, allowing for a multitude of interpretations in private and public spaces. Following a modular principle, the oak or walnut table top needs to be selected as a standard or RAW version, featuring the brushed natural edge of the tree. The base made from powder-coated steel in three different basic colours as well as all other RAL colours (with a surcharge) can be combined with any table top. Additionally to powder-coated steel, the is base also available in exclusive materials such as blackened steel, zinc-plated steel and brushed brass.
